HIROSHIMA, JAPAN

A TREASURE TROVE OF HIGHLIGHTS AND FOOD, WITH TWO WORLD HERITAGE SITES

History buffs will want to write home about Hiroshima. Despite being devastated in 1945, this Japanese city is known to all for its commitment to peace – its ruin on the 6th August 1945 led to the end of the war and today, the Peace Memorial (a UNESCO World Heritage Site), is a constant reminder of the destruction that war brings.

A walk in the leafy boulevards of Peace Memorial Park brings quiet contemplation. The Flames of Peace – set in the park's central feature pond – burn brightly and will continue to do so until all the nuclear bombs in the world have been destroyed.

There are many other inspiring messages of hope around the city too; the Children's' Peace Monument just north of the park is a homage to little Sadako Sasaki, who was just two in 1945. When she developed leukemia in 1956, she believed that if she folded 1,000 paper cranes – a symbol of longevity and happiness in Japan – she would recover. Sadly she died before she finished her task but her classmates finished the rest.

If you are lucky enough to visit during the unpredictable and short-lived Sakura (cherry blossom) season, then the extraordinary sight of the delicate pink blossom floating across the water to the red gate, means you can consider yourself one of the luckiest people on the planet.

SIGHTS

- Atomic Bomb Dome
- Hiroshima Peace Memorial Museum
- Peace Memorial Park
- Shukkeien Garden
- Mazda Zoom-Zoom Stadium
- Itsukushima Jinja

HIROSHIMA CASTLE

Hiroshima Castle was built at the end of the 16th century by Mori Terumoto. The castle was completely destroyed by the atomic bomb, but was reconstructed in 1958 to its former appearance and is loved by locals as a symbol of Hiroshima.

It has become a museum that introduces the history of Hiroshima through materials and models, holding about six special exhibitions a year and holding various promotional activities.

Many diseases and conditions are spread by not washing hands with soap and clean, running water. Alcohol-based hand sanitizers can quickly reduce the number of germs on hands.
