The surprising superstitions of the Lion City

Superstitions are like culinary specialities: every part of the world has its own, and discovering those of new countries is always an experience, if not tasty, then at least fun.

Singapore is no exception to the rule in a South-East Asia that gives pride of place to the supernatural, and offers some surprising sparks of superstition that you can observe with a smile or take home with you, should they bring you luck... You never know.

Let's start with a belief that will please the cheapskates: in Singapore you don't gift watches or shoes.

Watches symbolise the end and 'giving a clock' in Mandarin sounds very similar to 'attending a funeral'.

To avoid bringing death, no watches or clocks are given. For shoes, the same battle: shoe is pronounced the same way as evil in Mandarin. So it's in very bad taste to give shoes. Two beliefs that can save a lot of money...

Also forbidden: cutting your nails after dark. In Singapore, it is believed that this practice attracts angry spirits who could bring misfortune on the house and its inhabitants. Never point at the moon either, especially if it is full. The risk? Finding yourself with the tips of your ears cut off in your sleep. Also to be avoided: whistling at night. This practice, which is harmless everywhere else, seems to please ghosts in this part of the world. Whistle at night and you could end up with a string of not always benevolent ghosts hanging around your neck. Fortunately, the best way to deal with this is to wash your feet and face as soon as you get home, so as to ward off the wandering spirits.

Another rule of the Lion City, which is also found in Vietnam, is that you don't take photos of three people. Two, yes. Four, yes, but three, no. It's bad luck for the person in the middle to be the first to die.

Finally, let's finish with a rather amusing and intriguing superstition involving new owners, a new flat or house and a pineapple. For good fortune to fall upon a new house and its owners or occupants, when they first enter their new home, they must knock on the door three times and shout 'hual ah' (good luck) as they roll a pineapple around. Derived from Feng Shui, this practice is said to purify the premises. The story doesn't say, however, whether a tin of pineapples will do the trick..

BOAT BUILDING COMPETITION

GET CREATIVE AND GET SEAWORTHY

▶ THE COMPETITION AND JUDGING WILL BE 22 FEBRUARY AT 11:15 A.M.

A renowned and highly anticipated World Cruise tradition is our boat building competition. In this entertaining contest, we ask all of our guests to put their brains and creativity to the test in building a seaworthy boat. The boats have to undergo trials and challenges and the winner will be crowned the Silver Dawn champion.

You are invited to work alone or in teams. Each boat will be tested on overall creativity of design and presentation, ability to float un-assisted in the pool and the weight it can hold (the weights will be 12oz. cans, so the boat needs to be designed to hold the cans). At the end of the judging, all the boats will line up one side of the pool & with a single push by one team member, we will see which boat touches the opposite side first.

You may use any materials you can find for the construction of your boat, provided that you do not cause damage to any Silver Dawn property. You may not use any large materials like life-jackets, trash cans or similar items. Be creative. The total length of the boat can be no longer than 100cm (40 inches). Each sea-day, starting on 09 February, we will have a table outside the Venetian Lounge (deck 5) with materials available for you to use in the construction of your boat. The best, most seaworthy boat wins.

The main goal of this is to HAVE FUN! If you have any questions, please contact Cruise Director Moss and the cruise staff.
