GERALDTON, AUSTRALIA

Gateway to the Houtman Abrolhos Islands

Surrounded by sun-drenched beaches, Geraldton in Western Australia is a thriving city facing the Indian Ocean. Located on the Coral Coast, the city has a friendly country-town feel while also being rich in local history and cultural heritage. Like many coastal towns, its dining and café culture is superb, offering a delightful dilemma for travellers when choosing where to eat.

Celebrated for its annual display of spectacular wildflowers, Geraldton's flora attracts visitors from all regions. Guides often take tourists on round trips of up to 300 miles (500 kilometres) to ensure they see the very best of the bloom. A haven for visitors—especially during the cooler months—the landscapes vary year to year depending on rainfall. Entire fields become blanketed in colour, and rare plants such as the wreath flower burst into magnificent bloom.

Knowledgeable local guides keep track of which areas are flowering and are always ready to point visitors in the right direction. With more than 300 species of native plants, it is no surprise that insects and birds flourish here too. Over 120 types of birds have been recorded, along with 22 species of reptiles and seven species of frogs. And of course, the iconic kangaroo also calls these plains home, offering visitors a truly authentic Aussie welcome whenever one hops into view.
