DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA

The Surf City

What is it about South Africa's third most popular city that draws people so much? Is it the vibrant waterfront, complete with street performers and sand artists? Is it the melting pot of ethnicity, with all cultures from Zulu to Indian finding a home here? Is it the laid back life style that has locals calling it simply "Durbs"? Is it the sweeping landscape? The clement climate? One visit to Durban will quickly make you see the reason people love it so is a combination of all of the above.

Durban has always been a beach city but it was the massive investment for the 2010 World Cup that really put it on the map. A huge revamp of the promenade has brought with it some fantastic eateries which serve up all kinds of "chow" from traditional bunny chow to bobotie, (a sweet spiced mince dish with egg topping). Expect Asian influences wherever you go, too. Durban has the largest Indian population outside of India.

Although there is little evidence, it is known that the city of eThekweni – Durban in Zulu – was inhabited by hunter-gatherers thousands of years ago. It was first sighted by Vasco de Gamma in 1497, but it was not until 1824 that the British settlers raised the Union Jack. This was after King Shaka gifted "25-mile strip of coast a hundred miles in depth" to Henry Francis Fynn after Fynn helped him recover from a stab wound. It remained part of the British Commonwealth until 1960, when it became part of the Republic of South Africa. The city's Euro-African heritage remains to this day.

The bunny chow - the Durban specialty - is unique to the city and consists of a quarter loaf of bread hollowed out and filled with a curry of your choice. The dish is also called a 'kota' in many parts of the country. The original bunny chows were made only with vegetarian fillings and were known as a beans bunny.

Do not use large denominations when paying street vendors as this may attract unwanted attention. Do not accept food or drinks from strangers. Avoid walking around the port area, unaccompanied, especially after dark. Use licensed taxis and keep to the main streets when unsure of your surroundings.

AN ALERT FOR THE AFRICAN REGION

In Africa, mosquitos and insects increase after sundown. Please close curtains, turn off veranda lights, use repellent, and cover arms and legs. Protect yourself from the sun with sunscreen and a hat. Use hand sanitizer, eat carefully ashore, and drink bottled water only.
